

JAP TROOPS CAPTURE TSITSIHAR

WILL COUNT DRY LAW VIOLATORS

OHIO PROHIBITION CHIEF HAS ORDERED CENSUS OVER STATE

Milton Cox Named Deputy By Governor White

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 19.—A state-wide "census" of major liquor law violators, unprecedented in method and scope, was ordered today by Prohibition Commissioner Edmund G. Mathews, less than twenty-four hours after he was named head of Ohio's dry forces.

Leading citizens, ministers, heads of dry organizations and public officials will be questioned by his investigators who will go into every county in the state, searching for liquor manufacturers, wholesalers and transporters who have previously escaped the law.

Armed with that information, he will command his entire staff of inspectors to sweep down on the violators and bring them into court in a gigantic roundup of persons chiefly responsible for the heavy flow of liquor in Ohio.

Mathews declared that his state-wide survey will be started almost at once, possibly next week. Two trusted raiders now in the field will be summoned to the central office to make the investigations. The work will require at least a month's effort.

"They will visit different parts of Ohio searching for tangible evidence of outstanding violations. Naturally, they will not be interested in hearsay testimony," the new commissioner told International News Service.

"They will interview everybody who has a complaint to register—ministers, representative citizens, heads of service organizations, officials."

"We want to find out what is being done by forces other than those of the state department."

"Anybody having a grievance against a local official will be asked to air it with one of our representatives."

"Ohio is a dry state—always has been—and we are in search of an intelligent method of enforcement. We want to find the method by which we can best hit the violators a good stiff blow."

"We are going to cooperate to the fullest with local officials. Wherever they are in difficulty, we will lend assistance," Mathews added.

The survey, Mathews declared, will cover the chief points of difficulty in the state and will give the department an accurate working basis.

Under his direction, Mathews said, the department will continue its plan of refusing to allow agents to drink or obtain evidence.

The practice of using women or children as under-cover workers also was condemned by the new commissioner, who declared all such employees "must be men of mature age."

Although a few shifts may be made later, moving inspectors to new territories, no such changes are to be ordered now, Mathews said.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 19.—Formal announcement was made here today from the offices of Governor George White of the appointment of Milton S. Cox of McArthur, Vinton County, as deputy state prohibition commissioner.

Cox succeeds Edmund G. Mathews of Elyria, who was appointed head of the prohibition department yesterday to fill the vacancy caused by the sudden death recently of Clarence J. Sears of Chillicothe.

The new deputy commissioner is a member of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and is a former railroad employee. During the last ten years he has been superintendent of schools in Pickaway County. Representing Vinton County, Cox was a member of the seventy-third general assembly of Ohio.

Cox was also chief of the division of markets in the state department of agriculture during the administration of former Governor Vic Donahey.

STARR FAITHFUL PROBE IS REVIVED

BOSTON, Nov. 19.—A secret investigation was underway here today in the case of Miss Starr Faithfull, drowned off Long Beach, L. I., last June under suspicious circumstances.

Police Inspector Harold R. King, prominent figure in the original probe at Mineola, N. Y., refused to say whether the case was to be officially reopened or whether an arrest was expected.

FIFTH OF COMMUNITY CHEST GOAL RAISED AS DRIVE CONTINUES

HOLD HER HUSBAND

Dudley Doyle, 21-year-old estranged husband of Marie Burch Doyle, above, 17-year-old Bellaire O. girl, whose body was found on Chapline hill, Wheeling, W. Va., has been held for questioning by police. The young wife, who had been strangled to death, left her father's home several days ago supposedly to meet her husband at Benwood, W. Va.

MAN KILLS TWO AND ENDS LIFE IN LOVE MIXUP

Ohioan Kills Woman Who Spurned Him And Her Husband

DENNISON, O., Nov. 19.—The hopeless love of one man for the wife of another today had brought death to the woman, her husband and the lover.

Thomas Wheeler, 35, shot and killed Mrs. Blanche Scheidiger, 34, the woman who had spurned his advances, and her husband, Russell, 35, as they stood talking with a friend on a street corner here last night. Then fleeing from the scene, Wheeler ended his own life four hours later in his automobile along a road near Cadiz after he had eluded a posse which sought him.

The shooting of Mr. and Mrs. Scheidiger was witnessed by their nine-year-old son, Russell, Jr. The boy told police that he and his parents were returning from a moving picture show in the adjoining town of Uhrichsville and had stopped to talk with Mrs. Eugene Renicker when Wheeler stepped out of his car, in which he had been trailing them, and fired point blank.

Scheidiger was killed by a bullet through the heart. His wife fell with shotgun wounds in the neck and back. Russell, Jr., leaped behind a tree and escaped injury in the fusillade, but Mrs. Renicker was slightly injured by the shotgun discharge.

Residents in the neighborhood who heard the shots and the boy's cry found the dead couple and saw the speeding car which carried Wheeler from the scene of the tragedy.

Police traced Wheeler's car to Cadiz but they were thrown off the track when he turned toward Dennison. Tuscarawas County possemen found Wheeler's body in his car near Dennison four hours later. The man, apparently knowing that his capture was inevitable, had taken his own life by firing a bullet through his heart.

Evelyn, 14-year-old daughter of the Scheidigers, attended another movie with a girl friend and followed her parents homeward. She saw the scene of the shooting, but friends in the crowd took her away in an automobile before she was aware that her parents were the victims of murder.

PROMINENT EDITOR CALLED BY DEATH

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 19.—Victim of a heart attack which struck as he was seated at his desk composing an editorial, James Banks Nevins, editor of the Atlanta Georgian and one of the nation's most prominent newspapermen, was dead today.

He was 63 years old.

Headquarters Pleased With Results On Second Day

One-fifth of the $12,000 determined upon as the goal for Xenia's present fourth annual Community Chest campaign has been obtained.

Incomplete reports made to chest headquarters Wednesday night revealed that $1,455.35 was subscribed to the chest on the second day of the drive, swelling the fund to $2,435.60 for the first two days of solicitation. This leaves $9,564.40 still to be raised if the quota is to be reached.

Encouraged by the fact the second day of canvassing showed greater results than on Tuesday when workers took the field for the first time, the chest organization is convinced this impulse of Xenians is to give more generously this year.

One particularly encouraging feature of the drive to date is that one-fifth of the quota has already been raised despite the fact none of the teams of solicitors has completed canvassing and some districts have made no reports whatever, although it is known all districts are being solicited.

Chest leaders desire to impress upon regional chairmen and their assistants, however, the duty to make daily reports in order that it may be determined how the campaign is progressing. Solicitors should make reports to their chairmen and the chairmen, in turn, to chest headquarters.

Should additional assistance be required by teams in any of the thirty districts, the chest organization announces it may be able to provide more solicitors to help those teams that feel they may be unable to interview all prospects during the week's campaign.

Workers are reminded by Chairman T. H. Zell that chest headquarters at 15 Green St. will be kept open each evening until 9:30 o'clock so that reports of the day's efforts may be submitted and any special problems or conditions brought to the attention of leaders of the drive.

One of the most noteworthy aspects of the drive is the fact contributions are being made by individuals who have not subscribed to previous chest campaigns here, while increased subscriptions are being received from many others.

Addressing a gathering of chest campaign workers in New York a few hours prior to his death, the late Senator Morrow expressed, according to local chest leaders, the spirit of the chest plan when he said: "The problem of raising money for charities would be solved if those to whom you appeal could see with their own eyes what this money would do. When one sees before him the person who is suffering, sees with his own eyes the person who is in want, it is almost impossible not to help."

ROOSEVELT GAME PRESERVE TO STAY

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 19.—The thought of a brass band blaring in a deer refuge aroused Conservation Commissioner William H. Reinhardt to heated criticism of his predecessors today in a statement announcing that the Roosevelt game preserve will not be abandoned.

"Resort tactics" of former conservation officials and "a holdup game by racketeers" were blamed for past difficulties at the 3,000-acre Scioto County refuge by the commissioner.

At the order of Governor George White, a "new deal" is to be given the preserve, and the 300 deer, which the conservation council first planned to sell, will be retained, Reinhardt said.

Unsuccessful efforts to propagate deer in the past were declared by the commissioner to be due largely to incorrect management. "Last year somebody took a hand to the preserve. A hand in a place where you are trying to propagate deer! The idea!" he exclaimed. "That's a game refuge, not a circus."

ADVENTURERS HOME
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 19.—After an adventurous hunting trip in Africa, Charles M. Kelso and William A. Christ, Dayton, Ohio, electrical engineers, today were enroute home from here.

ATTEMPT ON LIFE OF DETROIT'S MAYOR IS REVEALED BY POLICE

DETROIT, Nov. 19.—What has been construed as an attempt on the life of young Frank Murphy, popular mayor of Detroit, was revealed by police for the first time here today.

Authorities declared that they had captured an armed man in the hallway of the mayor's home on E. Jefferson Ave. The man, Ahmed Abdullah, 42, is held a police prisoner in the psychopathic ward of receiving hospital.

Patrolmen guarding the Murphy home overpowered the man as he accosted the young mayor.

"The government of Haiti has been robbing me," he shouted, "and I want the 'head man' here to fix them for it."

Police searched the man on the veranda of the residence but did not find a weapon. A closer examination in police headquarters revealed a gun concealed in the sleeve of the man's overcoat.

He is believed to be the same person who wrote two threatening letters to the mayor. The letters, in red ink, had stated they had been written in blood.

The incident occurred Monday but was not revealed until today.

Mayor Murphy stated that he would continue to go unarmed and unguarded.

By ETHELDA BEDFORD
Author of "Dear Diary"

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Miss Anne Morgan perhaps hears every day of her life that her fine luminous dark eyes are exactly like her famous father—the late J. Pierpont Morgan, descendant of Alexander Hamilton, our first secretary of the treasury.

The adjective "magnificent" is often employed by those who knew her father in their effort to describe him. He has been labeled therefore, "Morgan the Magnificent."

This adjective may well be used in describing his gracious daughter, who has followed in his footsteps in many ways.

Silvery hair, worn short and with just a hint of a loose wave, frames her face, which has few lines and a freshness a school girl well might envy.

In Exclusive Colony
She has a beautifully appointed home on Sutton Place, that section which backs in the East river breeze and only can be afforded by millionaires.

She particularly favors the boudoir of her home and spends much time there. Her favorite chair is of crimson brocade and it sits beside an open fire in winter. Near it always are several of her best liked books, her glasses, a tiny clock with a white face, a box of cigarettes and an ash tray and a handsome reading light.

Miss Morgan always has been a smart dresser, having a slim, straight figure, ideal for wearing costumes to their best advantage. She wears golden beige lace ex-

ENTERTAINED TUESDAY.
Mrs. C. L. Spencer, W. Third St., opened her home Tuesday afternoon to members of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the First M. E. Church and their guests. Miss Martha Crawford was in charge of the devotional period and used as her subject "To Talk With God." Mrs. Harry Siefert gave the introduction to the study book, "Christ Comes to the Village."

During the remainder of the program members enjoyed a delightful talk by Mrs. Carrie Dodds Geyer on China. The hostess, assisted by Mrs. John Harner and Miss Jennie Rader, served dainty refreshments later.

Dr. A. D. DeHaven, W. Market St., is spending Thursday and Friday in Columbus on business.

Members of Pride of Xenia Thimble Club will hold an all day quilting party at the Junior Hall Friday.

The Victors' Sunday School Class of Trinity M. E. Church will meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lewis, Hill St., Monday evening.

JOINT COMMITTEES PLAN ON CHRISTMAS PROGRAM FOR HOME

Joint Christmas committees of the American Legion, United Spanish War Veterans and Grand Army of the Republic met at the O. S. and S. O. Home Wednesday and canvassed requests of the more than 700 pupils for gifts of books, magazine and newspaper subscriptions.

The children are annually permitted to express their preference within certain limitations as to choice of reading matter, and the three veteran's organizations appropriate between $1,200 and $1,400 to cover the total cost.

Other Christmas gifts coming under the heading of toys for the pupils are annually provided by women's organizations, including the Women's Relief Corps and auxiliaries of the Spanish War Veterans and American Legion. Committees of the women's organizations were to meet at the institution Thursday to consider requests of the children, who were permitted to indicate their first and second choices for gifts in this category.

Paul Fuller, Xenia, and Herbert Mooney, member of the trustee board of the Home, represented the American Legion at the joint committee conference Wednesday. Mr. Heinz, Dayton, Mr. Sweeney, Cincinnati, and Mrs. Smith, Columbus, represented the United Spanish War Veterans, while the G. A. R. representatives were J. K. Gibson, Dayton, and Mr. Salt, Cincinnati.

Active in Women's Work

Miss Morgan is famous as president of the American Woman's association. She has been an active worker in this organization for many years and has long been interested in careers for women. In fact, "women's success"—just the mentioning of those words during an interview kindle enthusiasm in her large dark eyes.

She has unusually beautiful hands, with long, tapering fingers. Has an especially bright, sincere smile.

Makes friends and holds them over long periods. Is known for her straightforwardness and sincerity.

Often Miss Morgan is described as "kind and wise." The term magnificent covers these and more. She is really a "great lady."

FIVE INDICTED ON CHARGE OF MURDER

First degree murder indictments against five Dayton youths, three of whom were apprehended in Xenia less than two hours after they held up and fatally shot Samuel Wick, Ebenezer grocer, were returned to the Montgomery County grand jury Wednesday.

Four of the youths in custody are Edward Chaplinski, 17, Raymond Kleismit, 19, John Czarety, 19, and Joseph Singer, 19. Singer surrendered a few days after the robbery and slaying. A fifth suspect who has not been captured, also was indicted. He is Joseph Peltersak, 18, of 270 Alaska St., Dayton, who escaped from the bandit car the night three of his companions were arrested in Xenia by Police Chief O. H. Cornwell.

Arraignment of the fourth youths under arrest is scheduled for 10 a. m. Saturday, Common Pleas Judge Lester Cecil having announced he will put aside other business matters to facilitate the hearing for the accused youths.

ENJOY GOOD HEALTH

Many people take sickness and poor health as a matter of course. They expect it and feel that there is nothing to be done about it.

This notion has been exploded since TON GEE—The Proven Medicine—has been placed within the means of everybody. This old doctor's prescription, which was used in his practice for many years, is put up by a registered druggist. There is no guess work in TON GEE!

TON GEE is mixed with the same care that your own druggist mixes your doctor's prescription. Hundreds of people who thought there was no help for them are now back to normal and are feeling fit, just because they have

VOLUNTARY GIFT

A citizen, believing in the Community Chest as the essential medium for raising funds to alleviate distress in the community, such a booster for the Xenia chest organization walked into chest headquarters Tuesday and, unsolicited, left his personal check for $50 for the present campaign for funds. WOMAN BURNED AS NAPHTHA EXPLODES

Mrs. F. E. Neff (Gladys Purdom), Chicago, who is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Purdom, 523 N. West St., received slight burns in a fire which damaged the kitchen of the Purdom home Wednesday at 4:20 p. m. Mrs. Neff was heating naphtha over an open fire in the kitchen and the fluid exploded.

The kitchen was damaged to the extent of nearly $100 from the blaze. The heat from the blaze caused the partition to catch on fire which spread to the attic. The loss is covered by insurance.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Therefore, my brethren dearly beloved and longed for, my joy and crown, so stand fast in the Lord, my dearly beloved.—Philippians, IV, 1.

WHICH IS RIGHT?

The Department of Agriculture in Washington needs a style-book. The department officially spells a long spell of dry weather "drouth." The Weather Bureau, a subdivision of the department, spells it in an annual report "drought."

What can the poor farmer do, when he wants to protest to Washington against "a lack of rainfall so great and long continued as to affect injuriously the plant and animal kingdoms and to deplete water supplies both for domestic purposes and for the operation of power plants, especially in those regions where the rainfall is normally sufficient for such purposes?"

The etymologists state that "drouth" is more correct, although "drought" has been more common; and that both spellings have been in concurrent use since the Middle English stage of the language's development. If one is sufficiently interested in the subject to pursue the word back to Morte Arture he will find it spelled "drowghte." Chaucer wrote of "the drowghte of March." The thirsty creatures cried in the "drought" of Dryden's Annus Mirabilis. Alfred Tennyson saw a vision moving in "the dust and drouth of London life."

With all that to work with, the pundits in Washington who instruct farmers in the ways curtains should be hung and children brought up, ought to be able to get together on a single spelling of a word that is on the tongues of more tillers of the soil than have either children to rear or curtains to hang.

PERFECTLY PROPER

The widow of Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway of Arkansas has been appointed to the seat in the United States Senate vacated by the recent death of her husband. She will hold it until the special election of January 12.

Gov. Parnell says that Mrs. Caraway is "a most estimable woman, thoroughly capable, and her active service in the United States Senate will be an honor to the State." Assuming that to be so—and we have no reason to assume that it is not so—appointing Mrs. Caraway to the Senate was perfectly proper. The Governor goes wrong, however, when he states:

"I feel she is entitled to the office held by her distinguished husband, who was my friend. The office belonged to Senator Caraway . . . and his widow is rightfully entitled to the honor so honorably carried by Senator Caraway during his years of useful service to the nation."

The office of United States Senator belongs to the people. They confer it temporarily on this man or that, as a trust to be administered in their interest. The idea that it "belongs" to those who enjoy its honors and emoluments for the time being is refuted by the fact that Senators may be removed from office during their terms and frequently are refused re-nomination or re-election.

Once before a woman, Mrs. Rebecca Latimer Feiton of Georgia, was the recipient of a "courtesy appointment" to the Senate. She occupied for two days a seat that was intended for a legislator duly elected or appointed for the purpose of legislating for the country. Courtesy appointments to the Senate are not what the Constitution contemplated or the nation needs. The widow of Senator Dwight W. Morrow made it plain she would not accept one if it were offered to her, as many of her friends urged be done. The dignity and usefulness of the Senate is not enhanced by conferring its toga on men or women for any other reason than their personal equipment to share competently in its deliberations and decisions.

URGES CUT

Alanson B. Houghton, former ambassador to Germany and to Great Britain, urges the United States and other powers interested in disarmament to cut their military establishments independently of France rather than risk the wrecking of the forthcoming disarmament conference on the rocks of French dissent.

Whatever favor this proposal might find in the United States, we have a feeling that France's more approximate neighbors in Europe—Italy, for example—will not fall over themselves to be the first to adopt it. They have had too many sad lessons in the folly of one nation letting down its guard before other nations in a position to attack it do the same thing.

The nobility of Mr. Houghton's idea is unimpeachable; but on the crowded and contentious continent of Europe, what still counts are the practical things of life and not ideal conceptions of the mind. As long as French dissent to a reduction of land and naval armaments continues unabated there is not likely to be any material assent to it on the part of states that have potential cause to fear the consequences of French chauvinism.

DECISION REACHED

In deciding to postpone for four years, the regular reapportionment of delegates to the Democratic National Convention in accordance with the last Congressional reapportionment, the National Committee of the party may have felt that it was between the Devil and the Deep Sea in handling the matter, with the Southern States sure to get sore if a change should be made next year, and the Northern contingent just as sure to become irritated if a change wasn't made. The choice appears to have been a choice between pressure and precedent; and at first blush, the Committee seems to have succeeded admirably in selecting the greater of two troubles.

But don't the Democrats know it is wicked to spend a whole lot of money in a presidential election campaign?

How would it be if Mr. Hoover were to turn his hair shirt wrong side out and wear it that way for awhile?

So Al Capone doesn't care for corned beef and cabbage. Hurry up, chef, and bring on some chicken a la king.

Having said that peace is the product of preparedness for defense, will Mr. Hoover now proceed to justify his faith by his works?

A disposition to exalt the things for which we have reason to be thankful above those for which we cannot so clearly see why we should be so thankful, will add to the palatable succulence of that Thanksgiving turkey.

The retiring president of the New York Central Lines started as a telegrapher and the next president of the Burlington Route as a rodder. Young men do not have to run rum or operate handbooks or rob banks to achieve success in the United States.

"A 'hired girl' is fat and has thick ankles. A 'maid' is trim in figure and has pretty ankles," says the Atchison Globe. There's another difference, too. A "hired girl" asks smaller wages and does ever so much more work than a "maid" does, or used to when there were "hired girls."

National Farm Outlook

By ARTHUR H. JENKINS

Editor, The Farm Journal
Written for Central Press

A price advance in the great agricultural staples has been long overdue. Large as the surpluses of some crops are, not even the world prostration of trade could justify prices that are lower than the lowest costs of production.

This is why the recovery in grain prices that got under way late in October is hailed with joy. It is based on a certainty that the price was intrinsically too low, plus a half a dozen developments in the grain world all favorable to higher prices. Whether the rally is continuous or not, certainly the tendency should be upward for the next two months.

The big question is Russia, as usual. The U. S. S. R. started out the shipping season with a burst of speed. Twice as much Russian wheat appeared in the European markets as in 1930, and the grain trade shook its head. But that hasty movement did not hold. At last reports little good Russian wheat was in sight, and observers are beginning to think that the harvest has fallen below 1930 figures.

It is the off-season, of course, for Argentina and Australia. Their growing 1932 crops are believed to be nothing to brag about. Canada's 1931 crop was a semi-failure, as was our own spring wheat production. Finally, Europe-grown wheat is none too plentiful, and the quality is reported as low.

That leaves our own huge, high-quality winter wheat crop and our carry-over of old wheat as the world's chief source of supply, and it looks as if Europe must buy much of it, willing or unwilling. A continent of bread eaters, they must have bread.

There are two more favorable factors. The unbelievably low prices for grain have done what low creased consumption, encouraged waste, and discouraged plantings of winter wheat for next year. War includes the feeding of wheat to animals, where coarser grain is ordinarily used, and even some cases of burning for fuel, as has often been done with corn. Some wheat as well as much oats and rye, was not even cut this fall.

The fall plantings, after all, are the most significant evidence of the change for the better. Although plenty of acreage is available for expanding wheat production, there has been an important shrinkage from last year—although the exact amount of decrease is not yet known with certainty.

The abnormally high acreage-yield of 1930-31 can hardly be repeated in 1931-32, so that it may well be that the 1932 crop will be somewhere within a reasonable figure at last.

Among others, the federal farm board and its co-operative and stabilization babies may well rejoice over the turn in the tide. For every 10 cents of advance in the wheat price the farm board comes "out of the hole" by something like $20,000,000, or it may be more.

If the advance holds, the farm board will be in just that much better shape to present itself before a critical congress, and account for its activities of the last nine months.

More important still, if the advance holds it will be tangible evidence that agriculture is leading the way out of the world depression, which is the way many able economists believe recovery must come about.

ANOTHER FORWARD PASS

Door To Private Office Of Congressman Garner Always Found Wide Open

CHARLES F. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—As John N. Garner says, the practical certainty that he will be speaker of the house of representatives, beginning the second week in December, hardly warrants him in trying to tell already just what the Democratic majority, which presumably will vote him into the presidency of the chair, will accomplish in the course of the whole coming congressional session.

The Washington correspondents want him to do so, but how can he? After all, the senate also has something to say about new legislation.

Moreover, in the well-known last analysis, there also is President Hoover, with his veto power, to be allowed for, as an uncertain factor in the next few months' developments.

It scarcely is to be wondered at, therefore, that Representative Garner brushes the newspaper men's queries aside a trifle impatiently, asking, in his own turn, what the scribes think he is—a prophet?

Still, it did seem to me that he ought to be able to venture a guess as to the proportions of the task which probably is ahead of him as speaker during the 1931-32 winter's session of congress, in comparison, for example, with the task the late Speaker Longworth handled so competently during the last and several preceding sessions.

"I don't see how I can answer Texan, rather querulously. 'How do I know, in advance, what problems I'll have to deal with?'"

Nevertheless, I felt that my interrogation had been a reasonable one.

Speaker Longworth had a Republican majority of approximately 100. Speaker Garner will have a Democratic majority of one or two, or maybe three. Which type of majority is the easier to manage? A very big one or a very small one?

"Oh," said the Lone Star statesman, "I get your meaning."

He leaned back in his swivel chair and appeared to ponder deeply.

Do Something "Foolish" We Are Not Machines We Are Alive!

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Are you weary and fed up and discouraged?

Are you stuck in a rut, disgusted with routine?

Has life gone colorless and tasteless?

Do you want to be happy again? (This sounds like an advertisement for something—and it is!)

Then break your routine. Do something foolish, something you can't defend, something no sensible person would dream of doing.

If you've been eating at home too much, then Eat Out. Go some where and sit down and scan a menu and pick out a meal that wasn't cooked in your own kitchen. Lingering over it and enjoy it.

Leave home for a night, or a week-end. Stay at a hotel over night, if you can possibly afford it. Take a trip into the country. Do something you've always wanted to do.

Buy something you can't quite find. Buy something you can't quite find. Buy something you can't quite find.

Buy something you can't quite find. Buy something you can't quite find. Buy something you can't quite find.

Buy something you can't quite find. Buy something you can't quite find. Buy something you can't quite find.

Buy something you can't quite find. Buy something you can't quite find. Buy something you can't quite find.

Buy something you can't quite find. Buy something you can't quite find. Buy something you can't quite find.

Buy something you can't quite find. Buy something you can't quite find. Buy something you can't quite find.

Buy something you can't quite find. Buy something you can't quite find. Buy something you can't quite find.

Buy something you can't quite find. Buy something you can't quite find. Buy something you can't quite find.

Buy something you can't quite find. Buy something you can't quite find. Buy something you can't quite find.

Buy something you can't quite find. Buy something you can't quite find. Buy something you can't quite find.

Buy something you can't quite find. Buy something you can't quite find. Buy something you can't quite find.

Buy something you can't quite find. Buy something you can't quite find. Buy something you can't quite find.

Buy something you can't quite find. Buy something you can't quite find. Buy something you can't quite find.

Finally, "I'd rather have 100," he answered, simply.

There is no more accessible public man of any caliber in Washington than Representative Garner.

The door into his private office stands wide open.

Enter his ante-chamber, inquire for the congressman, and "Walk right in," answers whichever secretary one may have happened to address the question to, motioning carelessly to the inner portal.

No more formality than that is involved in obtaining an audience with John N. Garner. On the other hand, it is hard to hold him tele-a-tele. With every caller so casually welcome, interruptions naturally are constant. His suite in the Capitol building is as hospitable as a ranch house in the cattle country, where all comers are received like long-lost brothers.

The Texan may shut himself in sometime for a little privacy, but I never chanced to drop in at his headquarters on such an occasion.

The congressman is slightly under middle size, and wiry of figure.

His hair is now nearly white and his bushy eyebrows absolutely so.

In contrast with this snowy setting, the healthy ruddiness of his jovial, belligerent face is almost startling. He is not tanned, but sunburned a bright red.

He speaks rapidly, in a loud tone and with a noticeable southwestern accent, reminiscent of the ranges, which he rode in his early 20's.

The prospective speaker's habitual expression is smiling, but it frequently has been remarked since his return to Washington that he arrived this fall looking unusually serious.

It is imaginable that he already feels the weight of heavy responsibility.

The speakership of the house of representatives generally is regarded (aside from the vice presidential possibility of elevation to the White House) as the country's most important position, next after the president's. The justiceships of the supreme court doubtless outweigh it collectively, but there are nine of the justices to a single speaker.

For his belly. . . . Buy something you thought you couldn't afford, and you'll find it was just what you had to have. A picture. A chair. A book. A hat. A coat. Whatever it is that you wanted.

Remember when the family cow used to kick over the milk bucket and hike rebelliously for the barnyard? Remember when the sedate old horse that everybody trusted ran scandalously away down the home town main street—and almost laughed at you afterwards? Remember how Rover used to disappear for days and explore the entire countryside and return with a big grin on his face?

Every dog, every cat, every cow, every horse, every human being I've ever known has needed to do something eccentric, something in defiance, once in a while, and has been the happier for it.

We are not machines. We are living creatures. We aren't entirely tamed. There's a wicked gleam somewhere in the mildest eye. There's extravagance in the most miserly heart. There are laughter wrinkles in the sourest face. Sugar in lemons. Sap in the lifeless tree. Life in the old dog yet.

If you would save your life, throw a bit of it away

In a partisan scene, by reason of his identification with the political forces in opposition to the administration, the Texas representative, in the speaker's chair, will fill a post of transcendent consequence to Democracy's prospects in 1932.

Al Smith, as titular leader, will have nothing like the opportunity to make or break the party in the ensuing year, such as will be placed in the hands of a Democratic speaker of the house of representatives with a Republican incumbent in the executive mansion. Of Democratic presidential possibilities each will be merely an individual until after some one among them has been nominated. In the meantime the speaker will be officially on the job, creating the record which, to a great extent, the nominee will have to run on.

Congressman Garner's potentialities are unknown, as head of a congressional majority.

He has been an exceedingly intelligent, active, fearless leader of minority guerrillas—a small minority. His work has been to harass the enemy by sudden forays, to cut off stragglers, to cause embarrassment and confusion in the foe's ranks whenever and wherever possible.

For this class of warfare he has precisely the right talents.

Maybe he has the talents likewise of a high-grade heavyweight commander.

The next six months will tell.

Baked Potatoes with Cheese—Wash and bake potatoes of uniform size. Have ready as many slices of rich cheese as there are potatoes, and about the size of the surface of the cut potato. When they are done, slice through them lengthwise, not quite severing them. Lay them open, and put in a generous slice of cheese. Press together and stand cut side up in dish. By the time the potatoes are served the cheese will have melted.

How Danger From Burns Occurs

By LOGAN CLENDENIN, M. D.

As soon as your child is old enough to begin to toddle around, comes the danger of burns.

Accidents occur, of course, while the child is still in the cradle. Scalding water falls on the skin. Flaring matches fall from the hands of the mother or nurse. But these hazards are increased a thousand-fold when the little adventurer in life begins to move around and explore the world for himself.

There is even more danger later when sister is big enough to help mother by carrying a kettle of boiling water. By reaching for a kettle on the stove where it is a little too high for her, and may tip and spill during her clumsy but earnest efforts to lift it down. When junior has become fascinated with the mystery of fire and has begun to play with matches. When bottles of inflammable cleaning fluid are left so that they can be investigated.

The greatest danger is from hot liquids. The Milwaukee children's hospital has published an investigation into the burns treated in their hospital during the last few years. There were 214 cases (all in children). Ninety-seven were burned by hot water, 19 by hot coffee, 4 by hot soup, 2 by hot milk and 2 by hot gravy. This makes a total of 124 burned practically by the same method—nearly two-thirds of the total.

The next largest number were burned by fire—35. Only 7 were burned by fireworks. Six were burned by gunpowder. Six were burned by contact with the metal of a hot stove.

Other ways were by cleaning fluid which ignited, a steam pipe, and such chemicals as iodine, ammonia, toothache medicine, and especially lye.

The lesson of these figures is plain. The most dangerous place for getting burns is the kitchen. Your children should not be asked or allowed to help there until they are old enough and big enough and strong enough to protect themselves.

Water is one of the heaviest substances in the world. Too heavy for little hands and arms to move a great deal of it readily. And it easily gets out of control—it spills and splashes and spreads out into a broad stream which, when it is scalding, injures a wide area of skin. Then its specific heat, as the physicists say, is very high; it retains high temperatures for a long time.

It is hardly necessary to dwell on the serious nature of such burns. Aside from the immediate danger of death—29 of the 214 children died—the permanent deformities are life-long handicaps. Young skin is tender and the scarring is deep. Scars on the face are serious disfigurements. A beautiful little girl may spoil her whole life by trying to lift a boiling kettle from the stove.

CRACK SIDNEY HIGH ELEVEN TO FURNISH FINAL OPPOSITION

Booked For Daytime; Visitors Can Tie For Loop Title

The final curtain will be rung down upon Xenia Central High's 1931 football activities in the Miami Valley League Friday afternoon at Cox Field when the Bucs meet their jinx opponent—Sidney High—in what will also be their last home game this season.

Xenia's five previous at-home contests this fall have been staged at night under the floodlights installed at the athletic field just before the campaign started, and now the Bucs will try their luck in broad daylight for the sake of variety.

Xenia griders were heartened, as they annually are, by their 10-0 triumph over the O. S. and S. O. Home last week and will strive with might and main Friday afternoon to destroy the hoodoo that has always pursued local teams in games with Sidney. The contest is to start at 3 o'clock.

Sidney High, with a chance to tie for the M. V. L. grid title providing it defeats Xenia this week and Greenville on Turkey Day, will prove a tough customer.

As a matter of fact, Sidney is represented by one of its best teams in a decade, one that will heavily outweigh Xenia, and one that has lost only two games this season.

Sidney was defeated by Hamilton Catholic, 13 to 7, in its season's opener, and more recently by Mansfield, 20 to 6, in an astounding upset. The Burgers walloped Xenia 32 to 0. Coach Granville Robinson's "railroaders" have beaten Bradford, 34 to 0; Bellefonte, 21 to 0; Piqua, 27 to 13; Troy, 13 to 12; and Urbana, 12 to 6.

About ten Buccaneer griders will be out to cover themselves with glory in Friday's matinee, because they are seniors and will be departing about the field for the last time in full view of the home folks. Not all of the ten may play, but most of them will get into the contest.

An added incentive for Xenia to do its best to win is the fact a Central High eleven has never defeated Sidney in football. One more defeat would not make a great deal of difference, but a victory—that would more than compensate for a season that on the whole has not been a pronounced success from the standpoint of games won and lost. Xenia's record stands at two victories, a tie and five defeats.

Dissatisfied with his showing last week, in which he had twelve winners, six losers and two ties, to show predictions on twenty of the major college grid contests, Emanuel Good, this department's 23-year-old Osborn football forecaster, is out to do better this Saturday. Emanuel writes thusly:

"I bet you think I was trying to frame myself the way my predictions turned out last week. But even if you think I'm all wet at picking winners, I didn't have any worse than Grantland Rice, 'king of sports writers.' He missed five out of two with two ties. Myself, I guessed wrong on six out of twenty with two ties. He failed to pick the winners of the Syracuse-Colgate and Army-Pittsburgh games. I was right on these two. I'm hoping that I don't miss more than three games this week, which was my average number of games missed until last week. Well, heads up folks. Here they are, in black and white, and I hope Saturday's scores prove they're right."

Hammond, Baker, four-foot six-inch quarterback of the Pottstown (Pa.) High Junior varsity, starred in Pennsburg High's backfield for one play during a game between Pottstown's J. V. and Pennsburg this season!

Impossible? Read on! At the end of the first quarter as the teams changed sides in the middle of the field, Hammond was sent into the game. He had been watching his team driving down the field in one direction so he took his position facing the same way.

As Baker was to play safety man he stood far back and no one noticed that he was behind the Pennsburg backfield instead of his own. It was Pennsburg's ball. Captain Bill Blank of Pennsburg received the oval and drew back his arm to hurl a bullet pass across the heaving lines.

Blam! A tornado struck him from the rear and down went Captain Blank. Hammond had taken his man—and for a big loss. However, the officials immediately penalized Pottstown five yards for being off-side.

Was Hammond mollified? Not so you could notice it! "Well," the pint-sized back chuckled as he took his correct position behind his own line for the next play, "anyway, I ruined a pass that might have been good for a big gain!"

Wagering on college football is getting to be a thing of the past. At least a New York commission house which handles the bulk of wagers on grid contests in that locality reports that betting on collegiate football has decreased 80 per cent in the last two years. A thousand dollars used to be the average bet a couple of years ago, but the average plunge today is two hundred.

MOBILIZE COUNTY RELIEF AGENCIES

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 19.—Broadcasting encouragement in the fight against unemployment hardships, Governor George White's emergency relief cabinet announced today that it has completed mobilization of county relief forces throughout the state.

"Under the county committees, community organizations have been effected in practically every county where there is a definite need," Mayor E. O. Braught, executive chairman, declared.

At the same time figures were made public estimating Ohio's unemployed at 403,000.

Employment in the state at the end of October was fixed at 76.3 per cent normal.

ALSO GETS SNAKE

WHILE hunting rabbits on the H. E. Schmidt farm along a stream known as Little Beaver Creek Tuesday, a Dayton hunter took time out to kill a rattlesnake. The hunter had just dispatched a cotton tail and was in the act of picking up the rabbit when he espied the reptile nearby. He killed the rattlesnake with one accurate shot and found it, upon examination, to have four rattles and a button. The hunter's identity was not learned.

MA'S ARMY FLEEING BEFORE JAPANESE; JAPS WARN RUSSIA

churia was dispatched to Moscow today by the Japanese government. Ambassador Hirota at Moscow was instructed to inform Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar for foreign affairs, that arrival of any Soviet forces in Manchuria would create a serious situation and would "likely result in serious consequences."

The instructions to Ambassador Hirota were believed to have been occasioned by fears among Japanese government officials that Russia might take military action to protect the Chinese Eastern Railway.

Foreign Minister Shidehara, in a formal note to the Soviet government, also asked that steps be taken to prevent the movement of hostile Chinese troops on the Chinese Eastern Railway.

QUAI D'ORSAY, Paris, Nov. 19.—Its efforts to solve the Manchurian conflict blocked by the unyielding stand of Japan, the League of Nations council turned in desperation today to Ambassador Charles G. Dawes.

Immediately after a secret meeting of the council—the fourth held since the League convened on Monday—Foreign Minister Aristide Briand of France sought a conference with the American diplomat in an effort to persuade him to take a seat on the council.

The veteran French minister, acting in his official capacity as president of the Council, planned to ask General Dawes to appear at least once at a public session, firmly believing that the League position would be immeasurably strengthened thereby.

It was learned that Briand also is extremely anxious to ascertain from General Dawes just how far the United States might be willing to go in backing up the League in the event the latter invokes articles of the covenant entailing diplomatic boycott, economic sanctions or other measures of punishment provided for alleged aggressors.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—The danger of a military collision between Japan and Soviet Russia in Manchuria occupied the serious attention of the American state department today.

Possibility of such a collision, it was gravely admitted, has been enhanced during the past forty-eight hours by the Japanese occupation of the cities of Anganchi and Teltshar.

What Russia will do, is one of the twin problems which faces the state department. The other question is what the world is going to do regarding Japanese military occupation of Manchuria.

Responsibility for that answer will be passed to the League Council, now meeting at Paris, with Charles G. Dawes, American ambassador to London, president of the Paris conference with members of the council on behalf of this government.

Hope that an agreement for pacific action to settle the Manchurian crisis was still expressed by Secretary of State Stimson. But his statement lacked the lustre and optimism which characterized his declarations a few days ago.

GARFIELD'S SON IS COLLEGE SPEAKER

HIRAM, O., Nov. 19.—Known to the world as a president, statesman, army officer and politician, the real James Abram Garfield was always a teacher.

It was the enthusiasm with which the martyred chief executive carried on his work as principal of the Western Reserve Electric, or Hiram College, that is best remembered by his eldest son, Harry August Garfield, president of Williams College, who addressed the Hiram College founder's day gathering here today on the 100th anniversary of Garfield's birth.

"I remember to have heard stories of the enthusiasm with which my father worked as a teacher. They remained with me and in later years helped me to understand the character and quality of the man," Dr. Garfield said.

SLAYS WOMAN, SHOOTSELF

ELYRIA, O., Nov. 19.—Resting beside her wounded sweetheart, the lifeless body of Mrs. Alice Wedie, 21, of Grafton, O., was found in a parked automobile on a lonely road five miles south of Elyria, by rabbit hunters today.

The woman, with a bullet hole in her temple, was believed by authorities to have been killed by the man, Michael Benzak, 25, of Elyria, who then attempted suicide by firing a shot through his head with the same revolver.

Benzak's condition was reported as critical at the Elyria Memorial Hospital where he was taken immediately by the hunters who discovered the bodies.

GOLF BALL FOR 1932 TO BE EXACT IN BOTH DIAMETER AND WEIGHT

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—It is very likely that the golf ball for 1932 will be 1.68 inches in diameter and 1.55 ounces in weight, which will cause many folks to comment: "Why, it's exactly the same ball as this ballroom of 1931 which has provoked so much ruckus."

But it won't be the same ball. When a new ball was ordered for 1931 play the United States Golf Association ruled that it must not exceed 1.62 in diameter and 1.55 in weight. It did not specify anything at all along the lines of

DEATH OF OHIO DRY OFFICER IS PROBED

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 19.—The mystery of the death of Curtis Lysinger, 60, Mansfield under-cover prohibition worker who died after a fight with a man named "George" following the receipt of threats against his life, was given to chemists for solving today.

Vital organs of Lysinger were to be searched for poison by State Health Department chemists at the request of Richmond County prosecutor G. E. Kaibfleisch and Coroner James K. Biddle.

Authorities believe Lysinger who was known as "the old man with the cane," might have been the victim of persons whose arrest he had caused.

One alleged threat against his life was quoted by officials. "You better not testify in those liquor cases next week, you...." he was said to have been told.

HICCOUGH VICTIM THOUGHT IMPROVED

MANSFIELD, O., Nov. 19.—Medical skill today won a partial victory in the battle to bring relief to Ira A. King, Mansfield hicough victim.

At General Hospital it was reported that there was a slight improvement in King's condition and that the hicoughs were under control most of the time. Only at intervals was the attack recurrent and hospital attendants believed that King's recovery was probable.

Dr. R. R. Black, King's physician, declared that the victim had been able to take all of the nourishment doctors would allow him and that at no time had he lost any strength.

Today was the eleventh day since the continuous attack started and the seventeenth since the malady first beset King.

CLEVELAND NEARS COMMUNITY GOAL

By International News Service
Led by Cleveland, which neared its third million Ohio cities plugged on toward their goals in community fund campaigns today.

Ravenna, Kenton and Celina went over the top in their drives yesterday, encouraging the cities already at work, and boosting the total of successfully completed campaigns to four. Orville ended a successful campaign Tuesday.

Columbus, with a goal of $897,098 to be achieved by Nov. 24, obtained pledged for $140,040. Its total now is almost $200,000. Workers at Dayton brought in $89,680, making their aggregate $263,833.

Officials at Bucyrus simultaneously announced the launching of a $5,000 campaign.

CADETS PLAY FRIDAY

"less." So the manufacturers took advantage of the situation and what the bulk of them did was to make all balls 1.62 in measurement, but the weight varied—and in all cases it was lighter than 1.55. Some of the "interesting" item scale bulked no more than 1.40 to 1.45.

Hence the ballooning tendencies. The United States Golf Association will announce tonight or tomorrow exactly what will be what with reference to the ball of 1932. Already it has stated that the diameter will not be changed but declares that it will have "something interesting to report with reference to the weight."

No doubt the "interesting" item will involve simply the ruling that balls must weigh 1.55 ounces—no more, no less.

"If the ball of 1931 had weighed 1.55" commented H. H. Ramsay, president of the U. S. G. A. "It is quite possible that no complaint would have been made. But the fact that the ball of this year was a bigger target for the breeze to bat against and that most of the balls were much lighter than 1.55 provoked the 'ballooning'."

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—The railroad stocks turned upward after an irregular opening today and led the whole market in a moderate recovery from Wednesday's closing slump. From the early low levels, New Haven, Atchafon, New York Central and other favorites moved up about 2 points on the average, stimulating a slightly better demand for the industrials and specialties.

CLOSING QUOTATIONS

MAY USE 1932 AUTO TAGS DECEMBER 10

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 19.—Automobile license tags for 1932 may be legally used December 10, instead of on December 21, as in past years, Chalmers R. Wilson, state registrar of motor vehicles, announced today.

Earlier collection of license tag funds so that distribution of the money may be started before the end of December was given as the reason for moving the date to December 10. The decision was reached at conferences with Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown and other state officials.

Ex-Film Stars Happy in Retirement

Sad Case of Lillian Walker Illustrates Fickleness of Film Fame—Her Experience Recalls Other Screen Queens on Whom Fortune Smiled More Kindly.

NITA NALDI

CORINNE GRIFFITH

LILLIAN WALKER

When Lillian Walker, whose dimpled beauty and talent were the toast of movie enthusiasts back in the old Vitaphone days, recently appeared in the divorce court spotlight, many a film fan asked himself the question, "What has become of the stars we used to know?" Not all of the abdicated screen queens have been as unfortunate as Lillian. She made an unhappy marriage and in her recent suit for divorce it was disclosed that she has been fighting poverty for years on her dairy farm at Saratoga, N. Y. In contrast to her fate there are the happy endings of Corinne Griffith, the "Orchid Lady," now living happily with her husband in her beautiful French chateau; Alice Terry, who also lives in the eternal sunshine of Southern France with her film director husband, Rex Ingram, and Anita Stewart, who is now the wife of multi-millionaire George Peabody Converse. Then there is Pearl White, whose adventures made our spines tingle, running a gambling palace at Biarritz; and Ruth Roland, another stunt serial queen, who piled up a huge fortune in real estate. Nita Naldi has also found happiness in retirement and is living in Paris. Thus, it may be seen that although glory in the film is short-lived, the harvest is bountiful while fame is at its height and the majority of bygone stars looked well to the harvest and have no cause for regret now.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 19.—The recent emergence of Lillian Walker from the obscurity which has veiled her for years into the spotlight of the divorce court has caused many a movie-goer to pause and ponder the question, "What has become of the film queens of yesterday?"

Lillian of the Divine Dimples reigned supreme in flickerdom back in the days of the old Vitaphone, in 1910 and 1912, lionized and toasted because of her beauty and talent, Lillian's dimpled face looked out from magazine covers, picture postcards and the "ads" of the time. Then, suddenly, she was gone and another reigned in her place. Forgotten by the fans who once adored her she eked out a miserable existence on her dairy farm at Saratoga, N. Y., until she recently appeared in court to tell a sordid story of unfortunate marriage and desperate poverty.

No brand of fame is more fleeting than that acquired on the silver screen. It takes millions of flickers to build it up, but only one flash to destroy it; but while fame is in full bloom, the harvest is bountiful. Therefore, only a scattered few have shared the tragic fate of Lillian Walker.

For every one who has traveled her path there are dozens of Corinne Griffiths, Anita Stewarts and Alice Terrys who have found contentment and happiness in retirement when they slipped from their lofty pedestals.

Corinne Griffith, once known as the "Orchid Lady," lives happily in her beautiful French chateau, with her husband, Walter Morosco. Alice Terry also lives abroad under the azure skies of Nice, where her husband, Rex Ingram, produces films.

Anita Stewart is now Mrs. George Peabody Converse, wife of a multi-millionaire. None of the three mentioned regrets her retirement from the blaze of public adoration. They got out at the very pink of their fortunes and took with them happy memories.

Then there is Pearl White, who made our hearts skip beats alarmingly with her hair-raising adventures in the "Exploits of Elaine" and the "Hazards of Helen." Pearl must still have her excitement, so she is reported to be operating a gambling place at Biarritz.

Another queen of stunt serials, Ruth Roland, piled up a fortune in real estate and is a business woman extraordinary, more successful in her new venture than she ever was even in the films.

Who can forget bewitching Nita Naldi? Nita also had the wisdom to retire while the thunder of applause was still ringing in her ears. Refusing to act against nature, Nita declined to undergo the rigorous dieting necessary to restrain her voluptuous figure and sold her adieu to the screen at the height of her success. She now resides in Paris.

One could go on and on enumerating the queens of screendom who had their shining hour, only to vanish into oblivion when new faces captured the public adulation. The great majority of the stars of yesterday are comfortably fixed financially and apparently happy in their obscurity. But one wonders if they ever sigh regretfully as they look back on the days of their triumphs when their names were on everybody's lips, from duke to dustman, and blazoned in a million lights outside the theatres of the world.

XENIA AND GREENE COUNTY OBITUARY, FUNERAL NOTICES

MRS. BLANCHE CURRY

Mrs. Blanche Orr Curry, 61, widow of Ned Curry and a former Xenian, died at her home in Cleveland Wednesday morning at 7 o'clock according to word received by relatives here. She has been in failing health two years and her condition had been serious three months.

Mrs. Curry spent her girlhood in Xenia and while here was a member of Christ Episcopal Church. Her husband preceded her in death twenty-five years. She is survived by a daughter, Miss Grace Curry, teacher in the Cleveland public schools; a sister, Mrs. H. L. Smith, 125 Union St., this city and a brother, Frank Orr, Kansas City. The late William F. Orr was also a brother.

Funeral services will be held at the home in Cleveland Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

MRS. LOUIE CONKLIN

Mrs. Louie Conklin, 70, widow of Newton Conklin, died at her home in Wilmington Thursday morning at 5:30 o'clock. She had been ill seven weeks.

Mrs. Conklin was born in Port William, the daughter of Joseph T. and Sadie Arnold. She spent her early life in Port William but had resided in Wilmington the past ten years.

Mrs. Conklin is survived by six children: Prof. Harold Conklin, Toledo; James A. Conklin, Cleveland; Arnold Conklin, Washington C. H.; Mrs. Eric Oglesbee, Mrs. Sadie Strickle, formerly of Xenia and Maynard Conklin, all of Wilmington. A sister, Mrs. D. M. Jenkins, Wilmington, also survives. Mrs. Conklin leaves a number of relatives in Xenia and Greene County.

Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Arthur Funeral Home, Wilmington, and burial will be made in Port William Cemetery.

Makes You Lose Unhealthy Fat

Mrs. Ethel Smith of Norwich, Conn., writes: "I lost 16 lbs. with my first bottle of Kruschen. Being on night duty it was hard to sleep days but now since I am taking Kruschen I sleep plenty, eat as usual and lost fat too."

To take off fat—take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast—an 85 cent bottle lasts 4 weeks—Get it at any drug store in America. If this first bottle fails to convince you this is the easiest, surest and safest way to lose fat your money gladly returned. Adv.

SOLDIER'S KEEP IS LESS BUT CAR COSTS MORE IN U. S. ARMY

By HOBART C. MONTEE
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

WASHINGTON—It cost the United States Army less to keep a man and more to keep an automobile in 1931 than during 1930, according to the annual report of Major General John L. DeWitt, Quartermaster General, released today.

The cost of food per man in the army decreased from 50.06 cents per day in 1930 to 41.15 cents per day in 1931. The cost of maintenance of the army's automobiles during the same period increased from $265.06 to $266.71 each, per year, or approximately nine cents less per day for feeding a soldier, and 17 cents more a day to keep a car in repair.

The decreased cost of rations was a reflection to the general reduction in the cost of living, while the increase in the maintenance of automobiles was laid to the aging condition of the cars owned by the army. Many of these were purchased during the World War, and are still in service.

Measures of economy and relief distributed in the Nicaraguan earthquake zone, and to unemployed in the United States, also were touched upon in General DeWitt's report. It stated that subsistence supplies were shipped from army depots at Panama, and other supplies were taken off army transport for relief of the earthquake sufferers and turned over to the American Red Cross in Nicaragua. In addition, meals were furnished to refugees returning to the United States on army transports.

During the year the Quartermaster Corps was called upon to render assistance to the unemployed in this country. Supplies were placed under the control of corps area commanders and with the approval of governors of various states there were loaned to reputable charitable organizations the following: 5,103 bedsacks; 28,169 blankets; 1,300 pillow cases; 17,881 cots; 200 mattresses; 200 pillows; 400 bed sheets.

TOOTHACHE 29 YEARS

SIOUX CITY.—For twenty-nine years Paul Clark had a toothache. Repeated extractions failed to relieve the pain. Not wanting to live always with his tooth aching, Clark had an x-ray picture taken. The x-ray revealed a knife blade two inches long imbedded in his jaw. Then the patient recalled that in 1902 he was in a fight at Plymouth, Ohio, when he received a cut on the jaw—the doctor had sewed up the wound without probing it. Now Paul Clark is free of the toothache and he can vouch for the durability of good steel.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine. For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes these good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely. But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

DRIVE ON GAMBLING HITS LEXINGTON

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 19.—A concerted and relentless drive upon all gambling establishments in Lexington was inaugurated today upon orders of Chief of Police Ernest Thompson who declared that all gaming dens, whether handbook or poker rooms, must be wiped out.

The drive against gambling establishments, it was believed, was the outgrowth of the shooting of Robert Hale, retired Lexington policeman, in a reputed gaming resort Sunday night.

The first step in the anti-gambling war was taken yesterday when Chief Thompson closed the offices of a well-known race result and information news bureau and placed under arrest the manager and his two assistants.

DETECTIVE DIVORCED

CHICAGO.—Revelations of the private life of a private detective won Mrs. Dorothy C. Becker her freedom from her "detecting" husband, Clarence Becker, Judge Joseph Sabath granted Mrs. Becker a divorce after she explained that it took most of her stenographer's salary to keep him out of jail. As the final reason for a divorce, Mrs. Becker said her husband had struck her because she had remonstrated with him over his fondness for liquor.

YELLOW SPRINGS

National Book Week will be observed at the schools this week. Special programs have been prepared beginning Monday with a program for adults. The elementary school and Antioch Schools will exchange visits during the week. Tuesday's program will consist of reading and telling stories. The same program will be carried out Thursday. On Wednesday a radio program will be heard. On Friday, the last day of the National Book Week, the children will form a parade of book characters. Miss Guinsler, principal of the Elementary School is chairman of the program committee. Her assistants are, Miss Hughes Mrs. Carr, Mrs. Paul Jones, Mrs. Snook and Miss Coy.

The W. C. T. U. will meet with Mrs. Goode and Mrs. McKee, Tuesday afternoon. The delegates who attended the state convention in Dayton will give their report at this meeting.

Dr. William Leiserson of Antioch College was heard over the radio from the Chicago station, Saturday evening where he gave a talk on "The Effect of Depression on Wages." This was the fifth of ten talks sponsored by the National Committee on Radio in Education. The ladies of the Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church will hold their annual Thanksgiving and praise service Sunday evening. The program will consist of a missionary play and thank offering.

Miss Ruth Ryan of Columbus is visiting her aunt Mrs. Nellie Alexander. Miss Helen Gerhardt left Saturday for Washington D. C. where she will take a civil service position.

Miss Evelyn Murray of Chicago, Ill. is visiting Mrs. Louise Whiting. Miss Murray will return home for Thanksgiving.

Miss Katherine Fittz is visiting friends in Cincinnati.

The Peace Declaration contest sponsored by the churches was held in the Methodist Church Sunday evening. Those who took part in the contest were Cathleen White, Dorothy Kigner, Lolo Griffin, Marjory Carpenter, Robert Tibbs and George Yeazel. The judges were: Prof. L. R. Gibbs, Prof. Earl Brown and Mrs. Knove.

George Yeazel won first place and Lola Griffin, second.

Dr. McChesney of Cedarville College preached in the Presbyterian Church Sunday morning during the absence of the pastor Rev. Carl White who was called to Greenville, Tenn., on account of the illness of his father.

Thieves have again been busy in Yellow Springs. They visited a number of homes on Dayton Street Monday morning. At the home of John Birch they stole Mrs. Birch's pocket book which contained about eight dollars. The officers were notified and followed the car the thieves were driving to the outskirts of the town where they lost track of them.

TAX RATES FOR VILLAGES AND TOWNSHIPS BEING ANNOUNCED

Definite 1931 tax rates for the twenty-one principal taxing districts in Greene County, including Xenia city and all the villages and townships, were announced Wednesday by James J. Curlett, county auditor.

Lower rates as compared with 1930 have been established for twelve districts, in seven districts the rates have been increased and in two districts the rates are unchanged from last year.

The rates, as previously fixed in a tentative form, have been formally approved by the state tax commission.

The rates for Cedarville village and township and for Yellow Springs village and Miami Twp. are still uncertain, however. The Cedarville and Miami-Yellow Springs school districts approved, at the recent election, proposals for participation in the state equalization fund, and rates in these districts are affected by the decision of the voters approving the plan for state aid.

A two-mill tax levy for school purposes in Cedarville and a three-mill levy for similar purposes in Miami Twp. and Yellow Springs, fixed by the state, expired in 1930. Under the state aid plan, the new tax levies for school purposes in these districts will be not less than two mills nor more than three mills.

The attorney general has ruled, it is claimed, that such levies shall not be put on for collection in December, but shall be delayed until the June collection period next year. In that event the tax rates in the two school districts in question in Greene County would be $2 lower per $1,000 property valuation as compared with rates as announced by the auditor for these districts, it is believed.

Here are the 1931 tax rates for the twenty-one principal taxing districts with a comparison of 1930 rates of each district:

District	1931 Rate	1930 Rate
Bath Twp.	$17.90	$17.90
Fairfield VIL.	22.30	22.40
Osborne Twp.	20.30	20.60

MENTOR WILL LOSE ODD REPUTATION

MENTOR-ON-THE-LAKE, O., Nov. 19.—The reputation of this tiny community that it is the richest little village in Ohio is in danger under the state's new intangible tax law.

One shipping corporation with its "home office" here already has taken steps to "move" and others are expected to follow suit. The first company to plan a "moving day" was the Interlake Shipping Company which called a special stockholders meeting for Nov. 25 to approve incorporation in Delaware of a new company to acquire property of Interlake.

For many years, Mentor-On-The-Lake has been the haven for corporations which have used the village as their "home office" because of Lake County's low tax rate. Nearly 100 Cleveland corporations alone have used Mentor as their "home office" location. Value of the village property has been estimated as high as $100,000,000.

Two little white houses here have been the scene of more stockholders meetings than any other two places in the nation. Here every year come officers of every Mentor corporation with handfulls of proxies to hold the annual meetings of their companies.

The new state law, however, hampers the city's claim. Shipping companies and aviation companies now must pay state taxes on their steamships or planes and all other property at the place of residence of the owner.

Ruth Judd's Eyes Give Clue to Heinous Crime

Woman Head of New York Criminal Bureau Says Trunk Slayer's Eyes Indicate Motives Back of Murders.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Although experts in the intriguing field of criminology have not been able, as yet, to pick out, with unerring accuracy, or with appreciable practical results, persons who will commit crimes in the future, they are proficient at providing backgrounds and motives which actuated the criminal—after the deed has been done. Such is the case with Winnie Ruth Judd, trunk slayer.

While such post-mortem reasoning does not serve as a preventive of crime, it does provide helpful explanations of lawless violence and may, in time, with the all-important cooperation of far-seeing legislators, segregate the criminal inclined and guard not only others but themselves from their dangerously uncontrollable natures.

The most recent and particularly gruesome case to bring criminologists to the fore with interesting theories brought out this statement from Clara Parsons, head of the criminal identification bureau, New York State Department of Corrections:

"Winnie Ruth Judd's first words, 'I am not guilty,' might have been anticipated from the distant, almost vacant, look in her eyes.

"While otherwise the woman seems to be an average looking person, with no particularly outstanding earmarks of crime, her eyes have the familiar faraway, even slightly vacant look so often seen in persons mentally disturbed," declares Miss Parsons.

The person who described one's eyes as the "windows of the soul" has a sincere corroborator in the able woman criminologist who bases her diagnosis of the killer of her two erstwhile friends in Phoenix, Ariz., on the tell-tale eyes of the trunk slayer.

"The look in Mrs. Judd's eyes is seen in melancholy persons, persons who are abnormally sensitive to the point of brooding over imagined slights. Her eyes, and the eyes of persons like that, do not seem to be alive. They do not smile when the lips do. They are, as it were, the eyes of an individual shut off from the world, in a world of their own," Miss Parsons declares.

"Mrs. Judd's eyes, to me, tell a woman who stuffed her victims' bodies in trunks and shipped them to Los Angeles was writing her 'life story' and unconsciously supporting the very theories advanced by Miss Parsons.

"Her brow is low but broad, and the furrows may denote brooding or much quizzical raising of them to people to whom she has been wont to appeal for help against punishment or for indulgence of her whims," Miss Parsons explains in continuing her study of the self-confessed double murderer.

"Her nose is average, the flaring nostrils perhaps indicative of high strung sensitiveness. They are not high cut and broad, the nostrils of the keenly intelligent person.

"Her mouth, with its rolling and slightly thickened underlip, shows a love of the beautiful, a sensuousness without perhaps sensuality. The almost downward droop at the corners would tell a story of lifelong discontent, unhappiness, melancholy.

"Mrs. Judd's chin does not bear out the strength of her jaws, which are square and determined. The chin slopes away to a weak line, which on the other hand is counterbalanced by her high cheekbones."

In conclusion, Miss Parsons believes that Mrs. Judd is emotionally cold, for, after satisfying her grudge, she still bore it as is evidenced by the cold manner in which she disposed of the bodies. Aside from the mental condition showing in her eyes, the woman criminologist, however, sees only a fairly average woman in Mrs. Judd's other features.

FRIENDLY RIVALRY SPURS ACTIVITIES OF CHEST CHAIRMEN

A spirit of friendly but nevertheless keen rivalry introduced into the present Xenia Community Chest campaign between the thirty different teams of volunteer solicitors, has served to keep interest of the army of workers at a high pitch, and intensify their efforts in behalf of the fund.

The chest goal is $12,000 and the regional chairmen and their assistants in each city district have been assigned estimated individual quotas that aggregate $11,000 of the total amount sought to be subscribed.

The goals for each team of workers range from $25 to $1,100, based on collection prospects in each territory and a lively competitive spirit prevails among the solicitors in each district, each team striving to be the first to report its particular quota has been attained.

Following is a list of the regional campaign chairmen and the estimated amounts each chairman and team are attempting to procure in the current drive for funds:

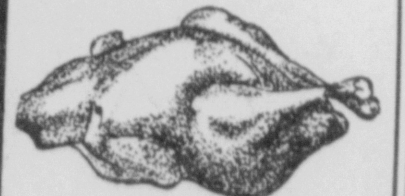

Section	Amount
1—D. W. Cherry	$1,100.00

SELF-FEEDERS PROVE TREACHEROUS FOR LAMBS

Self-feeders for offering grain and hay separately to fattening lambs proved to be treacherous equipment in a recent lamb feeding trial, conducted by D. S. Bell, sheep specialist, at the Ohio Experiment Station.

In these tests western lambs that had never tasted grain were given access to self-feeders containing oats or corn-and-cob meal. Several lambs died and fully half of the remaining ones became seriously ill from indigestive disorders due to overeating, although the feeders were closed after only a few hours.

Again, lambs brought to full feed by careful hand-feeding were not entirely free from illness, and two deaths resulted.

After the lambs were on self-feeders for about six weeks, a heavy mortality resulted from so-called apoplexy. Sixteen lambs out of 120 died in a space of about four days. There was no proof that brain hemorrhage had occurred. However, some lambs would die without evidencing any previous symptoms of illness. Others would be stricken with a paralysis, evidenced by loss of sensation and the power of voluntary motion. None of the stricken lambs recovered. Definite proof as to the cause of death has not yet been obtained. It seems that the losses were associated with overeating on grain, accompanied by low roughage intake, because the mortality in the four lots increased as the proportion of concentrate intake to roughage intake widened. These tests indicate the treachery of self-feeders for offering grain and hay separately to fattening lambs. Certainly those lamb feeders who have never had experience with self-feeders should proceed cautiously. Several other Experiment Stations report successful self-feeding experiments when the roughage is chopped or ground and mixed with grain in about the proportions one would use in hand-feeding lambs. Under farm conditions, the cost of preparing the roughage and then mixing it with grain may more than offset the saving of labor from using self-feeders.

ONLY SIXTY OBJECT TO VALUATIONS FOR COUNTY PROPERTY

Reflecting general satisfaction with the equality of new land values in Greene County as fixed by the recent county-wide reappraisal, only sixty individual complaints against the new real estate valuations have been filed at the county auditor's office by property owners.

This is considered an unusually small percentage inasmuch as a total of 20,000 tracts of real estate were reappraised.

Complaints against any valuation or assessment, except the valuations fixed and assessments made by the state tax commission, may be filed at the auditor's office on or before the time limited for payment of taxes for the first half of the current year.

It is announced, however, that the first hearing by the Greene County Board of Revision will not be held until 9 a. m. December 1, but that additional hearings relative to complaints will be held from time to time thereafter until disposition has been made of all complaints on file.

The board is composed of County Treasurer Harold Van Pelt, County Auditor James J. Carlett and A. E. Beam, president of the Greene County Board of Commissioners.

FORMER XENIAN ORIGINATED CHEST IDEA

A few years ago a paper prepared and published locally by Miss Helen Moorehead, former Xenian, entitled "How Help the Poor Without Increasing Pauperism," aroused considerable argument in the community because in the article she advocated a plan, then apparently new, for putting the work of charity and welfare organizations in a city on a more efficient basis.

Miss Moorehead suggested that the best method of coping with the situation would be to employ a paid worker, on the job throughout the year, who was trained in the work and could supervise the assistance that was then being given needy members of the community.

The thought she presented has now been adopted generally, but little did the community think at that time that the idea Miss Moorehead conveyed would become so universal in its application through widespread adoption of a Community Chest, now in its fourth year in Xenia.

Local chest leaders declare that it is apparent Xenians have been interested for many years in this necessary project of caring for the needy and studying the subject with the hope of putting into operation the best method designed to accomplish the greatest good. The Community Chest, they say, is the answer.

SEEKS TO REPLEVIN ELECTRIC SIGN

L. A. Wagner, Xenia optometrist, has filed a replevin action in Common Pleas Court against Philip Cohen, Dayton, seeking to regain possession of an electric sign attached to the Allen Bldg., hanging over the entrance to a store room on W. Main St. formerly occupied by him as a jeweler.

Claiming ownership of the sign, Wagner charges that Cohen, who purchased the stock of his jewelry business at a bankruptcy sale, is wrongfully detaining the sign, valued at $25. Marshall and Marshall are the plaintiffs' attorneys.

Irving Bacheller in the New York Herald Tribune, writes pointed comment on the motion picture as a form of contemporary expression. His comment is reproduced as follows: "There is one leader of incalculable influence. It is the movie show. "This is the greatest power for good or ill the world knows and in part it is good. It has over-emphasized and exalted sex and violence as a power in human affairs—now and then with shocking indecency. Seldom in my knowledge has it done justice to the agencies for the improvement of the human spirit. Whatever may be said of the church and the synagogue—and I am well aware of their imperfections—they seek to make men better citizens, with a deep respect for human rights. They fail in their purpose now and then, but rarely. When they fail the case is extremely advertised.

"Why should this great agency for good be neglected by the stage? Is rectitude uninteresting? The great problems and adventures of the human spirit, in conflict with the power of evil, are tremendously of interest. When an artist of deep insight deals with this theme, no theater can hold the crowds that want to see his play.

"The craftsmen of Hollywood would do well to turn from swift and violent adventure to the slowly going things in which sex is not both the driver and the team, but is the dog under the wagon—a big, powerful, likeable dog. If you please.

"The conditions of which I complain are, in part, due to rich, idle and often much-married men and women who set the fashions in dress, manners and even in morality. They soothe themselves in wallows of vice where the code of Moses is violated and ridiculed. Many of them despise America, while they have fattened on the prosperity it has enabled them to enjoy."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—A one-horse shay, believed to be 200 years old, is the latest addition to the collection of vehicular Americana at the Smithsonian Institute.

Discovered in a deserted shed in the backwoods near Newcastle, Me., the carriage was purchased by T. Lamar Jackson, of Tennessee, Md., whose offer to resell it to the museum was quickly accepted as there are few of these fine examples of old coachwork remaining in navigable condition in the United States.

Jackson acquired the valuable find from Mrs. Martha Hopkins, 101 years old, who said her father took his bride from Newcastle to the family farm in it in 1830. The carriage originally belonged to Mrs. Hopkins' grandfather, so that it probably extends back into the eighteenth century.

It is still in good condition and contains the original upholstery, fashioned from fine broadcloth and trimmed in heavy lace. The leather straps on which the body is swung remain strong and resilient; the calfskin top shows no cracks.

When you paid $250 in gold and a $50 watch for one of these carriages, as Mrs. Hopkins' grandfather did, you could be sure that a couple of hundred years later the brass hubcaps would still be firm, the wheels true, and every piece of the handwrought iron tires, bolts, lugs and fixtures as sound as a bell.
